Amber Sanges Hemberger defends product liability claims in both general and commercial aviation disputes, as well as personal injury and property damage claims filed against national and regional aviation clients in jurisdictions across the country.

Amber enjoys solving legal problems and helping clients understand and navigate through every phase of legal representation. She works collaboratively and is a trusted adviser among colleagues and clients because of her ability to navigate each matter with practical and tactful solutions.

During law school, Amber was a research assistant for Professor Ryan T. Holte, now known as the Honorable Holte for the U.S. Court of Federal Claims.
