For more than 30 years, Larry Gosewisch has represented the interests of professionals in a variety of industries, serving as lead counsel in bench and jury trials in state and federal courts and before many appellate courts. He concentrates his practice on civil litigation, advising clients on strategies to mitigate the risks of litigation and vigorously defending their interests when litigation becomes inevitable. Larry is called upon to defend architects, engineers, surveyors, and other construction and design professionals against professional negligence claims.

Larry also defends complex and nuanced claims connected to the real estate market and counsels various real estate professionals, including brokers, realtors, agents, property managers, and appraisers. In every defense, Larry maintains a steadfast resolve to provide efficient and robust legal defenses that recognize the individuality of every client and complement the client's business strategy.

Larry also devotes a portion of his practice to representing members of voluntary boards and associations, condominium boards, and boards of charitable foundations. Since 2013, Larry has been an active member of the Illinois Supreme Court's mentor program through DePaul University and the Chicago Bar Association.
