Michael McKleroy has more than 25 years of civil litigation experience in trial court and on appeal. Michael has focused most of his career on representing financial institutions in a variety of matters in state and federal court. He routinely defends lenders and servicing companies against consumer-related complaints arising under common law and statutes such as Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA), Truth in Lending Act (TILA), Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA), Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), and Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA). Michael also has significant experience recovering money and/or property lost by lenders due to fraud, tax, or title issues.

Prior to joining Hinshaw, Michael practiced law at another national law firm in the consumer financial services practice.
