Canadian businesses are major stakeholders in U.S. tax reform. With the interconnectivity between markets and the recent overhaul of the U.S. federal tax system, there will be broad and complex implications that will fundamentally impact how Canadian companies do business with the U.S. In addition, there are new consequences for U.S. citizens resident in Canada owning interests in Canadian companies.

Our team of Cross-Border Tax attorneys will provide a high-level summary of the key provisions of the new U.S. tax law, focusing primarily on factors impacting cross-border transactions.

Key topics that will be addressed in the program:

- General overview of key changes affecting individuals

RECENT U.S. TAX DEVELOPMENTS: HOW KEY PROVISIONS AFFECT CANADIAN BUSINESSES AND THEIR U.S. SHAREHOLDERS

- General overview of key changes affecting businesses, including reduced U.S. corporate tax rate and a new pass-through deduction
- Impact to Canadian owners on choice of entity and structuring decisions for U.S. operations
- Impact on cross-border repatriation strategies

New rules that apply to Canadian corporations with U.S. shareholders, including U.S. citizens resident in Canada
