The scope of environmental diligence has evolved significantly since the advent of environmental laws and regulations. There have historically been cycles during which new and emerging concerns have risen to the forefront of the diligence process, and the last several years are no different. This webinar will focus on providing strategic and financial buyers and sellers a core background on key diligence items to be aware of, while highlighting some of the key emerging issues of concern.

Join Hodgson Russ attorney Michael Hecker and GEI Consultants' Michelle Martin and Kathleen Stetser for this informative webinar.
