

HODGSON RUSS WORKING WITH NATIONALLY RECOGNIZED AVIATION FIRM KREINDLER & KREINDLER

June 22, 2009

Hodgson Russ has decided to work with the nationally recognized aviation firm Kreindler & Kreindler in the representation of families involved in the tragic Flight 3407 crash. Lead Hodgson Russ partner Hugh Russ, who was recently asked to be liaison counsel for all plaintiffs, says that "the combination of our two firms working together for the victim families will be extraordinary. Our local prominence together with Kreindler & Kreindler's expertise in representing victim families of aviation disasters will afford families top notch representation." Together, the firms represent five victim families.
