Home Care Alert
August 11, 2017

Each month, Business First gathers executives and leaders from a variety of industries at Hodgson Russ to discuss issues relevant to their businesses. In July 2017, the topic was long-term care: Presidents and CEOs met to discuss changes affecting the delivery of long-term care services and how they are planning to accommodate a more acutely dependent resident population in the not-too-distant future. A summary of their insights is available here. We know you will be interested in their perspectives.

At Hodgson Russ, our Health Care team keeps track of emerging developments to help you anticipate and respond to them. Please contact us for more information.
