the largest 200 law firms in America and ranks them by various financial and cultural markers.

Fostering a Diverse Future: Creating a Pipeline to Law

At Hodgson Russ we know that creating access to the field of law is a complex process requiring financial support and the development of relationships that help a young person navigate high school, undergraduate education, and law school. We have developed a series of programs that expand and build on opportunities for future leaders to learn more about working in the legal system. Our Pipeline to the Law program includes supports for underrepresented students at the high school, undergraduate, and law school levels.

High School Support:

The firm has a long term relationship with Buffalo Prep, a program that provides access and preparation for talented underrepresented youth to achieve success in college prep high schools and higher education. We provide mentors, financial support, and a scholarship to students who graduate from the Buffalo Prep program. After high school graduation, members of the firm continue to serve as mentors and offer internship opportunities to students from Buffalo

Prep. Since 2012, Hodgson Russ has presented a college scholarship to a college-bound senior from Buffalo Prep with an interest in the law.

Undergraduate Support:

- At the undergraduate level, Hodgson Russ sponsors the University of Buffalo's Discover Law Program, which provides a four-week immersive experience for underrepresented minority undergraduates and first-generation college students interested in pursuing a career in law. The program exposes students to critical thinking and helps them develop reading and analytical skills through an in-depth program. Hodgson Russ contributes financially, including sponsoring three named scholars in 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021, and 2022. In addition, we host networking events for students at the firm and provide mentors to the students in the program. As founding and continuing sponsors of this program, Hodgson Russ is pleased that we have recently hired several associates who participated in Discover Law.
- The firm supports a "Tour of the Courts" college intern through the Say Yes Internship and Career Pathways Program.

Law School Support:

- At the Law School level, Hodgson Russ participates in the Albany County Bar Association's (ACBA) Diversity Internship Program in partnership with Albany Law School, hosting law students each semester and providing them with substantive experiences while still in school. The ACBA Diversity Internship Program entails a ten-week internship in which students work a minimum of ten hours a week, totaling approximately 100 hours. The Hodgson Russ Albany office hosts two third-year law students (spring and fall semesters).
- We sponsor and support the UB Law School's OUTLaw and Students of Color Dinner each year. In 2020, we hosted an LGTBQ+ networking event for students to ask questions and connect to practicing LGBTQ+ attorneys in the area.
- We provide mentoring opportunities for mock trial teams at both the high school and law school levels.

A Culture of Diversity & Inclusion Learning

Hodgson Russ acknowledges that a strong law firm is always growing and expanding its understanding of the communities where it works. We consistently offer internal education programs to expose the firm to the complex diversity of our communities. Internal education programs increase the firm's understanding of important current issues, celebrate diversity at the firm and in the communities we serve, and ensure we are lifelong learners. Our internal education efforts include consistent conversations, training, and development for our staff and attorneys. We have also offered internal sessions on Cultural Humility and Redlining, as well as attended programming on creating policies that can improve racial equity in Western New York. We host a Diversity Month each year, and we celebrate, learn from, and honor the traditions and cultures of various heritages throughout the year. From exploring ancient Asian arts to hosting the West Side Bazaar, the Hodgson Russ Diversity and Inclusion Committee works to ensure that firm members are exposed to a range of cultures, heritages, and customs, which we believe develops a stronger sense of empathy and inclusion.

The Diversity and Inclusion Committee is also active in our community. We support our local Pride month programs, Buffalo's Juneteenth Parade, and numerous additional community organizations and programs. While COVID has paused our ability to be physically out in the community as a large organization, we continue to serve and learn from the communities where we work.

Learning Highlights:

 Journey's End's mission to welcome refugees without regard to ethnic origin or creed and to assist them to become 2019 about Unconscious Bias and Inclusive Intelligence. Dr. Reeves held several programs during her time at the firm and we continue to work to implement her best practices on a consistent basis.
