

Environment & Energy Law

The members of Plunkett Cooney's Environment & Energy Practice Group have decades of experience representing public and private sector clients in the traditional and emerging areas of environmental and energy law.

This expertise ranges from compliance assistance and due diligence to litigation and redevelopment. Our attorneys have had the privilege of working with clients across a range of industries, including cannabis, energy, health care, insurance, manufacturing, military defense, and municipal.

Whether you are seeking environmental or energy legal support, our Environment & Energy Practice Group is ready to partner with you to address your legal needs and achieve your business objectives. Our mission is to provide you with superior and timely legal services, to be responsive to your evolving requirements, including fee structure, legal project management, value-added features, and to understand and add value to your business. Please feel free to contact any of the group's attorneys for assistance.
